

Peter N. Dixon

PhD Student-Department of Finance
Haslam College of Business
University of Tennessee
533 Stokely Management Center
Knoxville, TN 37996-0540

801-920-5936 (cell)
pdixon2@vols.utk.edu

Updated April 21, 2016

EDUCATION

University of Tennessee-Knoxville

Ph.D. in Finance (Expected May 2017)

Dissertation: Using the Asymmetric Effects of the 2008 Short Selling Ban to Understand the Role of Short Sellers

University of Utah

May 2011

Masters of Statistics-Econometrics

2011 Masters of Statistics-Econometrics Student of the Year

Brigham Young University-Idaho

June 2009

Bachelors of Science-Financial Economics (Minor in Math)

WORKING PAPERS

“Do Investors Use Options and Futures to Trade on Different Types of Information: Evidence from an Aggregate Stock Index” With Kyoung-Hun Bae ~ Under Review

Under Review: AFA 2017 Conference

Available on SSRN at: <http://ssrn.com/abstract=2767207>

“An Empirical Analysis of Predatory Trading” With Kyoung-Hun Bae and Eun-Jung Lee

Under Review: AFA 2017 Conference

Accepted: FMA 2016 Conference

Available on SSRN at: <http://ssrn.com/abstract=2767240>

WORKS IN PROGRESS

Dissertation: “Using the Asymmetric Effects of the 2008 Short Selling Ban to Understand the Role of Short Sellers”

CONFERENCE PARTICIPATION

Authored Papers Presented

“An Empirical Analysis of Predatory Trading”

2016 Financial Management Association Conference – Las Vegas, NV

Discussant

“Idiosyncratic Volatility Shocks, Investor Overconfidence, and Cross-Section Stock Returns”

2015 Financial Management Association Conference

TEACHING

International Finance

Spring (2015)

Student Evaluation: [3.24/4]

(3.13 Departmental Mean)

Fall (2014)

Student Evaluation: [3.38/4]

(3.19 Departmental Mean)

Business Statistics

Fall (2011) No Evaluations Available

OTHER TEACHING

Math Boot Camp for Incoming Business PhD Students

Fall 2014, Fall 2015

Undergraduate Finance with Excel Initiative

Created over 20 how-to videos to help undergraduate instructors improve their use of Microsoft Excel in the classroom

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Financial Analyst Intermountain Healthcare Inc. Salt Lake City, UT 2011-2012

Responsible for building hospital budgets and pricing services